PLAN OF A DICTIONARY OF ANGLO-JEWISH BIOGRAPHY

[ENGLISH, AMERICAN AND COLONIAL.]

BY LUCIEN WOLF.

The following list was originally prepared for purposes of private reference, and was then enlarged with a view to its incorporation, as a biographical appendix, with the compiler's forthcoming work on Anglo-Jewish Family History. The almost unmanageable growth of the materials for the latter work, and the simultaneous lengthening of the biographical list, have rendered it impossible that the two could be combined, and the compiler has consequently resolved, as soon as his engagements will allow, to devote himself to the preparation of a Cyclopædia of Anglo-Jewish Biography on the lines here laid down.*

Meanwhile it has been suggested that the list may possess some intrinsic value as a contribution to the stock-taking of materials for Anglo-Jewish history, which has been stimulated by the recent Exhibition. As such it is now published. For every name here given accessible biographic materials exist; and in the forthcoming "Bibliotheca Anglo Judaica" the sources relating to post-expulsion English Jews will be indicated. With regard to the character of the list, the compiler has only to observe that, while he does not pretend to have exhausted the materials of Anglo-Jewish biography, he claims to have brought to the notice of the community a few important names hitherto unrecorded in standard works dealing with its history. Some of these are due to new researches and investigations; others result from the racial principle by which the compiler has been guided in his selection of names. Men and women of Hebrew race—that is to say where both parents have been Jews—are included in this list irrespective of the theological test to which they are supposed to have conformed. To these are added a few converts of note.
